DAM NOTES

Interesting Items of the Work Being Carried On At Lock Dam No. 33
Mr. R. B. Lovel

Margaret McClanahan
Work on Lock Dam No. 33 is at about a standstill due to the high stage of water in the river. Until the water recedes the work will necessarily proceed very slowly.

Frank Murphy
A cement hopper is being built in the northeast end of the cofferdam. This hopper will be used to hold cement when the work on the lock system is started.

Sluice gates have been made in the Myrtle Crane side of the cofferdam in order that the rapidly rising water may be let in gradually. To let it in all at once would be disastrous to the retaining walls of the cofferdam.

The derricks that have been erected James B. Ross, Jr.

in the bottom of the cofferdam are floating around in the water in the cofferdam. The sudden rise in the river lifted them off their tracks and tilted them to one side. They will have to be placed in position again.

The sudden rise in the Ohio has caused several of the workmen at the dam to be laid on the reserve list, and L. M. Cavendish at the present time only a few men are being kept busy.

All the towboats, derrick barges and cranes have tied up to the Kentucky shore until the waters recede, when they will assist in pumping out the cofferdam.

The pump boat that was used in pumping out the cofferdam is still in Mrs. S. Macey Humphreys side the cofferdam, but the pumps are not working, as each gallon of water removed from the inclosure at the present time adds to the pressure from the outside on the retaining walls.

YOUNG FORGER CAUGHT

Hon. Webster Budson T. White.
Clever Young Man Foiled in His Plan To Defraud Maysville Merchant—Lodged in Jail.

John Chenault
Friday afternoon about 1:30 o'clock a young man giving his name as H. F. Berry, aged 25, of Lexington, went into the wholesale liquor house of O. H. P. Thomas, on Market street, and purchased about $9 worth of whisky, tendering a check signed by his father, J. T. Berry, of Carlisle. Clifford Thomas

The check called for $35 and the change was given him. A few moments later the check was taken to a bank and there the Carlisle institution was called over the phone to see if the check was good, but informed the local bank's officials that J. T. Berry had no funds in their bank.

The local police were notified and soon captured the young forger, just as he was ready to board a C. & O. westbound train for Cincinnati. He was taken to the police office, where he told the police that all the trouble arose over a mistake of his father's. The police got into communication with his father, who told them to send the check to the Carlisle bank and he would pay the money it called for and to hold the boy until he arrived. This was done and upon seeing his father Richard Thomas the young man broke down and told the whole story.

The father arranged to have the young man taken from jail Saturday morning and left for his home.

GAME SUNDAY.

The local team, the Regulars, will hook up with the fast Feeney's All-Professionals. This team is made up of the former big and minor league players around Cincinnati and is rated as one of the best around Cincinnati. Our boys have braced up considerably and with the help of Dold, the Cincinnati catcher, and Perkins, at short, every cog in the wheel is moving smoothly. Frost or McDonald will probably twirl for the locals and it goes without saying a good game is expected. So be there and help them along.

Mrs. Webster T. White LEAVE TODAY.

Hensley Linville
Mr. Eugene John McNamara, alias "Scop," and Mr. James Andrew January, alias "Tubby," will this day depart on a canoe trip to up-river points. This vacation comes after many weeks of hard, tiresome labor and they will surely return much improved. They expect to reach Portsmouth in four days of hard paddling, and after making a visit will return to resume their work at The Ledger and De Nuzie.

Amelia Bendel Childs AUTO ACCIDENT.

Friday afternoon an auto driven by Frank McIntire, of the county, and occupied by Cory "Shorty" Bland, of this city, while going at a high rate of speed, plunged into the fence in front of the residence of Mr. Gordon Richard Orr, Asbury, of the county. The machine was badly torn up and but for a few scratches caused by the smashing of the glass windshield, the occupants escaped uninjured.

SOME RADISH.

Mr. W. A. Tolle, the Fifth Ward grocer, has on exhibition at his store a large radish, no doubt the largest of the season. It is a whopper and measures more than a foot in length and about a foot in circumference. The big radish weighs more than four pounds and was grown on the garden spot of Mr. Kellum, in Eastland, who has several more like it.

PROTECTION AND THE COST OF LIVING.

The argument which stood out more prominently than any other in the tariff controversy of the past several years was the contention of the Democrats that the prime influence on the cost of living was the tariff. They denounced the protective policy as a ruse on the part of the workingman, and a tribute exacted from the very warp and woof of the clothing which he wore. Speaker Champ Clark was loud in proclaiming the protective tariff as the cause of the high cost of living and the first plank of the Democratic platform, adopted at the Baltimore convention, among other things, asserted that no substantial relief could be secured for the people without import duties on the necessities of life were materially reduced.

The first important act of the Democratic Congress was to tamper with the tariff and enact in place of the law under which this country had prospered for twenty years, the Underwood bill, which placed nearly every food product on the free list, and when the President signed the law on October 3, 1913, Mr. Underwood took occasion to remark that he had the utmost confidence in the new tariff law and that he was absolutely confident that it would reduce the cost of living, but unfortunately the predictions of Mr. Underwood have not been borne out by conditions immediately following the new tariff.

The administration has, upon several occasions, through the various departments, confessed its error, the most recent of which is contained in a retail price bulletin issued by the Department of Labor. An analysis of the bulletin states that in September, 1914, the price of all food was 7.1 per cent higher than the average price for 1913, and goes on to say that for the eight years between 1907 and 1914, considering all food combined, the highest price was reached in 1914.

Fresh meats were placed on the free list by the Underwood law, since the enactment of which our importations from Argentina, Australia and Uruguay have reached astounding figures, and yet we are informed by the analysis that all meats were higher in 1914 than in any of the preceding seven years. The Department of Agriculture, in the "Crop Reports" shows that the prices received by raisers of food animals have declined since the enactment of the Underwood law, but the price of meat to the consumer was, in 1914, the highest in seven years. The duty on sugar was reduced 25 per cent, and will come in free after May 1, 1916, and yet quotations from Willet & Gray's Sugar Trade Journal show that the refiners' wholesale cash price was 4.116 cents per pound on June 19, 1913, as against 4.214 cents on June 18, 1914. This 25 per cent reduction represented for the year ending March 1, last, a loss of revenue to the government of $18,000,000, and the consumer pays more for the product than when the government derived a revenue from it. The same is true of every other article on the free list, the government loses the revenue and the price is not one whit reduced to the consumer.

These are hard, cold facts brought to light by government reports and show that the cost of living advances as private business and government revenues decline and the foreign food producer gleefully pockets the free trade margin promised the consumer. The farmer's prices are set by his foreign competitor, and the laboring man is without the wherewithal to purchase from either.

Our French friend Pierre de Tontou says: "A frog is a peculiarly leetle animale. W'en it seet down it stand up and w'en it run it jomp."

The United States having decided to publish a daily paper, we hereby apply for the job as sport editor.

Many a man carries a load of true greatness bottled up in his heart and never thinks to pull the cork.

The plain unvarnished truth does not appeal to a man who has a checkered career.

In the race of life no one knows the distance nor where the hurdles or turns are.

The trouble with many people is that they take something red for the blues.

If you are unreasonable the whole world will seem that way to you.

Trogloodytes.

"A. J. Drexel, one of the American volunteers in the British service, dined with me at the Ritz in London while on a furlough," said a Cincinnati correspondent.

"Mr. Drexel told me that he habitually slept in France eight feet under ground in a clay cave. His bed was a door. His roof was another door. The entrance was a two-foot square hole.

"Very luxurious—what you might call—digings," laughed Mr. Drexel."

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING IS THE ROAD TO ECONOMY.

Gipsy Willett

From the Delicatessen Shop.

We were talking to the little baker on the street above today about business and he said, "Ach, sure it is good. Why not, when all the competition I have got is from the women who know how to cook, and dey are not so many, eh?"

Helen Bond Dinger

In his window were little mutton pies looking as rich as Croesus and as crisp as a fat man's temper, and altogether irresistible. After we bought a half dozen of them and a pot of beautifully browned baked beans, some cot-

Mrs. Rose Miller tagged cheese and steamed Boston brown bread our neighbor became quite confidential.

The mutton pies cost, he said, about 25 cents a dozen to make, and they were not all mutton, but a mixture of Belle Collins mutton and veal or mutton and beef, or whatever cold meat he had left. After the cold meat was chopped, one-fourth its weight of cracker dust was added. This he called filler and said it gave richness to the filling and Malcolm Bartlett kept the cost of the pies low.

The little brown crock of beans held enough for two hungry persons and sold at 15 cents. To make and bake them he reckoned cost about 4 cents, as he allowed nothing for the heat.

Jim Stone

The oven, he explained, must always be full of foods cooking when it was started. "If it was not full of things then all mine profits they go out mid the gas, but there are so many things dot can cook in the oven as good as on the stove dot I save

Poster Barbour, Jr.

It is interesting to see success in any branch of work and this busy little man inspired us with a feeling of pleasure, but one thing he said is especially worth thinking about. That is, that women who can cook are the only ones he fears in his business.

Gordon Sulser

Other women must buy all their food and he can increase his business, without taking a single customer from other bakers, but if a woman can make these deliciously tasty little dishes herself she will not buy them. Is this not worth your consideration

If you want this dish flavored with tomatoes, just before they are removed from the oven raise the lid and pour in three tablespoonful of tomato sauce or mild catsup.

GROWTH OF AMERICAN MERCHANT MARINE.

Mrs. Maud Ort
Merchant vessels built in the United States and officially numbered by the Bureau of Navigation, Department of Commerce, during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1915, were 1,226 of 215,711 gross tons, compared with 1,291 Brownie Arn of 311,578 gross tons for the fiscal year 1914.

During the past ten months, however, under the Ship Registry Act of August 18, 1914, to the American merchant fleet, 147 foreign-built vessels Minnie Jolly of 528,907 gross tons have been added, making the total for the year from both sources 1,373 vessels, of 744,618 gross tons.

This tonnage is the largest annual addition to the American merchant fleet in the history of the United States. In 1908 the total increase was 718,638 gross tons, in 1907 it was 596,708 gross tons and in 1855 it was 586,102 gross tons.

The losses to the merchant fleet for the past year have not all been reported, but for the first nine months they number 1,062 vessels of 195,052 gross tons.

MAY PROVE FATAL

When Will Maysville People Learn the Importance of It?

Backache is only a simple thing at first;

But if you find 'tis from the kidneys;

That serious kidney troubles may follow;

That dropsy or Bright's disease may be the fatal end,

You will be glad to know the following experience.

'Tis the statement of a Maysville citizen.

Mrs. Della Lunsford, 328 E. Front St., Maysville, Ky., says: "I attributed kidney trouble to a strain. I had sharp, shooting pains through my kidneys and a dragging down feeling in my hips. I had dull headaches and dizzy spells and often if I had not caught hold of something for support, I would have fallen. I was in that condition for several years, up one week and in bed the next. I finally began to notice symptoms of dropsy. My feet began to swell and my hands were at times the same way. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at J. J. Wood & Son's Drug Store, permanently cured me."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Lunsford had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

UNITED STATES GIRLS WHO WED TITLES.

John W. Porter
Gladys Vanderbilt Becomes Countess Szechenyi.

The Vanderbilt girls, backed by one of the best names in America, have been most unfortunate in their alliance with the foreign nobility, and scarcely less distressing has been the Hall Strobe experience of Gladys Vanderbilt, who married the Hungarian nobleman, Count Laszlo Szechenyi, as was that of Consuelo, who became the Duchess of Marlborough.

Miss Gladys Moore Vanderbilt became the Countess Szechenyi on Jan. 27, 1903. The wedding occurred in New York at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, at Fifth avenue and Fifty-eighth street, only 250 guests being in attendance.

Miss Vanderbilt was introduced to society a few years before her wedding. Dr. A. R. Taylor, who at that time on rumor was busily engaged in marrying her to numberless young Americans as well as to an endless succession of titled foreigners, ranging from royalty to the latest impecunious noble who happened to land on American shores.

At the time of the engagement of Phyllis Swisher, Miss Vanderbilt to Count Szechenyi, the Hungarian nobleman was practically unknown in this country. At the time of the wedding he was a handsome young fellow of 28, slender and straight, his bearing betraying his military training. He was the youngest of the four sons of Count Harry Taylor.

Emrich Szechenyi, a prominent Austro-Hungarian diplomat.

When he was married Count Laszlo had an annual income of $60,000, and owned both town and country estates, so that it was generally recognized that the match on the part of the foreigner was one of love, and there was no money settlement exacted.

The wedding ceremony was performed by Monsignor M. J. Lavelle, of St. Patrick's Cathedral. The bride's wedding gown was of white satin, which was trimmed with some superb point lace which had adorned her Nancy Laughlin mother's bridal gown. Her attendants were her cousin, Miss Ruth Vanderbilt Twombly, Miss Dorothy Whitney, and her little niece, Miss Flora Payne Whitney.

The groom was attended as best man by Count Anton Sigray, the ushers being Count Stefan Szechenyi and Count Paul Esterhazy. The bride was given away by her brother, Cornelius Vanderbilt, whose conventional Houston Hall dress of an American gentleman was in striking contrast to the bright color of the military uniforms of the Hungarian groom and his friends.

A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony and immediately following the bride and groom started upon their honeymoon trip, going by train to the Vanderbilt home at Newport.

Jessie Willocks

R. L. "The Breakers," which had been prepared for them, and where they remained until February 4, when they sailed for Europe.

No American heiress in the long list of those who have participated in an international marriage has ever yet approached the record which Gladys Vanderbilt made in the line of raiment, having spent, it was estimated, Charles Slack close to $200,000 for a trousseau. She could well afford the outlay, for at the time of her marriage she was in possession of her share of the Vanderbilt estate, $12,500,000, and since the marriage this has been greatly increased, and in spite of the many James Seeley losses she sustained through her husband's unfortunate speculations, she remains one of the richest women in the world.

There was considerable romance in the meeting of the American girl and the Hungarian count. It was at a watering place in Salzburg. The two fell in love with each other in short order. The count's relatives were told of it and Miss Vanderbilt was re-Mrs. William Daugherty requested to come in the midsummer to the home of the Szechenyi family in the district of Horpreek, Hungary.

At a family gathering there the young American heiress was formally betrothed under the laws of Austro-Hungary. Then Miss Vanderbilt resumed her journey. Upon her return Mrs. Hiram Daugherty to America she was followed by the count, who was entertained at "The Breakers." There the arrangements were completed and the engagement announced.

Count Szechenyi's family is one of the oldest in Austria-Hungary. So far as lineage goes, probably none of the Col. Robert Willett titled foreigners who have married American women can boast of a longer line of ancestors than Count Laszlo. Beside his family tree, that of the Duke of Marlborough, who married Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, is the veriest sapling.

King Willett

The Szechenyi name goes back fully 1,000 years. The men of the family have borne the title of count for more than 300 years. Like their ancestors, the wealth of the present family lies in the ownership of land. The young count's father owned thousands of acres of land, divided into scores of farms and forest preserves.

Charles Lloyd

According to Hungarian standards the Szechenyis are very rich and powerful.

When the American girl reached Hungary, her marriage carried with it the opening to her of the great houses of Vienna and the imperial court, and Budapest offered her a Stanley Lowery social prestige little less alluring.

The family of the count is represented in nearly every branch of the official life.

Count Szechenyi's cousin, Count Bela Szechenyi, also married an American girl, Miss Wright, of New York, and she has always enjoyed a Jeff Easton most exclusive position in the highest Hungarian circles.

In spite of the elegance that Gladys Vanderbilt expected to encounter in the castles of her aristocratic husband, when she arrived in Hungary she was sadly disappointed, and was not there very long before she decided to purchase a suitable residence.

Mattie Duley

This was finally accomplished in the picturesque castle of Felso Remete, away up on the slopes of the wild eastern Carpathians. When the castle was completed and occupied in July, 1910, it was the most elaborate Anna Daugherty as well as the most modern residence owned by a Magyar aristocrat. The name was quickly changed to Gladys castle. It is located in the midst of a great estate on which stands a historic pilgrimage church and an ancient inn, both of which have been carefully preserved.

The first summer following the wedding the Szechenyis spent in America, and it was reported at the time that the countess was loath to leave the country of her birth. If that was the case then, things have not changed since, and there have been many rumors as to the great financial losses of her husband, which nearly wiped out his fortune, but as Lida C. Creighbaum long as they remain here together there will be no need for the Hungarian to worry over money matters, for the wife retains enough for them both. To what extent the war has affected the Szechenyis remains to be seen, but it will no doubt be little to the heart of the proud American girl in comparison with the domestic troubles she has had in the few brief years that she has been married to a titled foreigner.

Rome.—A dispatch to the Giornale D'Italia from its Venice correspondent Martin Clark states that the cruiser Amalfi was torpedoed when thirty kilometers (about thirty miles) from the coast. Efforts to save the cruiser were regarded as useless since the dispatch, and orders Mrs. Lee Cullen for saving the crew were immediately given. The Amalfi sank within less than half an hour. Other ships of the division arrived at full speed picking up men of the crew, 500 of whom were saved. Two hospital ships were sent to the scene from Venice.

PRESIDENT DECREES

Carol Matthews

That German Reply Must Come Through Regular Diplomatic Channels—Germans Will Not Yield.

Washington.—The United States government will not engage informally in any discussion or negotiation with Germany regarding the character of the forthcoming reply to the last American note on submarine warfare.

Ambassador Gerard, at Berlin, has been informed that such is the President's decision and that the ambassador is to make no comment on tentative draft given him by the German foreign offices. If asked for an expression, he is to say that the United States will await a formal reply before discussing the question further.

The outline of the German note as cabled by Ambassador Gerard is known to be far from satisfactory to officials. With respect to the sinking of the Lusitania on which more than 100 Americans perished, no admission Walker Harney of liability is made. Whether in extension or not the view is expressed in the draft that when torpedoed it was not believed the Lusitania would sink as rapidly as she did. As for the future, citizens of the United States would be permitted to travel with safety on the high seas if passengers on American ships, or on belligerent ships not carrying munitions of war. The United States would be required to inform the German government of the date of departure and character of vessels carrying Americans and guarantee that such ships had no munitions of war aboard.

In this connection high officials here state that it would be an unneutral act for the United States to notify any belligerent government of the date of departure from an American port or the character of the cargo of a merchantman of another belligerent.

Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, was in communication by wireless with his government during the day and is understood to have advised the Berlin foreign office that the form in which the proposals had been made did not appear to be acceptable.

to the United States. He learned that the position of the Washington government is that there must first be a recognition by Germany of the principle that an armed and unresisting merchantman must be visited and searched and passengers and crew removed to a place of safety before the ship is destroyed. Until there is an agreement on this principle, the American government cannot discuss any modus vivendi or temporary arrangements concerning the separation of passenger and contraband traffic.

The proposals made by Germany that belligerent passenger vessels which do not carry munitions of war John H. Carpenter shall be immune from attack provided they heed warnings of submarines and submit to visit and search, is not regarded as of itself objectionable, providing Great Britain and Germany were to enter into such an agreement.

Hermann Calvert

The American government, it is understood, would be willing to assist in making arrangements for the safe carriage of Americans aboard belligerent passenger vessels which do not carry munitions of war if the arrangement Mrs. Leewright Browning.

Such a method, described in diplomatic usage as a modus vivendi, would not involve any surrender of rights for the future and would be applicable only during a fixed period.

Mike Brown

As a whole, the German proposals are not regarded by well informed officials as bringing the questions at issue between the United States and Germany any nearer a settlement than they were several weeks ago. Present William C. Booton There were many evidences in official circles that the German controversy was again regarded as critical and that the reply as outlined was very disappointing.

Hazel Bramel

dent Wilson is expected to return to Washington Monday or Tuesday and the formal German reply probably will reach here at about the same time.

In considering the lives of the statesmen active in the early period of our country's history, it appears that they were endowed with the ability to fill the station assigned them, to set in motion a government "of the people, for the people and by the people," and protect each and all its citizenship in their inherent right of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Anna Dieterle

The eternal law of right governs a nation as well as an individual, for nations are but an aggregate collection of individuals.

Lucy Smith

Under the wise system of government inaugurated by our forefathers, the oppressed of all nations have found refuge. This system of human liberty has shone as a brilliant star paving the way for something similar in other parts of the world; but now Elizabeth Cady there are multiplied evidences that our people are leading the way into radical and untried experiments, which can but result in increasing unrest, unhappiness and dismal failure.

Adah Porter

In considering one of the most important questions that has come before the Sixty-third Congress to submit an amendment in favor of prohibition it is published that a majority voted for it, but only a few wanted it.

Ashby Porter

What is the explanation? It is also published that "a majority hoped they would not have to meet the issue and go on record for or against it, trusting to their leaders to find a way to defeat it without their help."

Dorothy Flowers

A sad commentary upon the Congress who are disposed to follow public opinion without regard to pure and enlightened statecraft.

The question with such men is not what the public interests require, but Charles Bland to hold onto their own job that they may continue to feed at the public crib. Surely a decadence of American statecraft.

As long as such men preponderate in the national councils it must be to the detriment of the public service; for the voice of the statesman is lost in the noise of the rabble. There is a Pickett Smith vast difference between the statesman and the politician. Reformers of both sexes with (like the bell in the steeple) a long tongue and a hollow pate, commands attention in advocacy of the most absurd theories, such as prohibition, woman suffrage and other wild fads, seeking some easy way to avoid the necessary burdens of life.

MEXICAN FACTIONS ALLOWED BUT THIRTY DAYS IN WHICH TO AGREE.

Bessie Wells

Washington.—Urgent suggestions that the United States wait no longer than another month before taking some decisive action to restore law and order in Mexico have been forwarded to the State Department by Nannie Toager several American consular officials in the northern part of the republic. All these reports, it was learned, have been forwarded to President Wilson at Cornish, N. H., after being carefully studied by State Department officials here.

Nora Reed

Threatened famine and the inability of the contending military factions to restore peace and establish a government that could be recognized by the United States are dwelt upon by the consular officials.

Mrs. Wheeler Rasp

Conditions more serious than even troubled Mexico has seen before, are predicted unless the United States lends a hand quickly. Recognition of some element which may set up a strong government with the moral support of the United States is the Conrad Rasp solution usually urged.

Meager dispatches that reached the State Department from Vera Cruz said Carranza's army, estimated at 25,000 men, had pressed its fight for possession of Mexico City within ten miles of the capital.

Apparently the investing forces had advanced eleven miles against the Zapata defenders in two days, practically reaching the city's suburbs. Reports of food shortage continued to reach the State Department and the Red Cross from various parts of Mexico.

QUEER APPLICATIONS.

Charles Snapp

London.—War enthusiasm has caused some queer applications to be sent to the Board of Trade. A widow in declining years said she hoped to end her days working in Vickers and Maxim's machine gun factory.

A Hartlepool woman who had lost her laundry business thought she would like to make shells for cannon.

Linn Orr

A suffragette suggested that she take the place of some able-bodied member of Parliament while he went to the front.

These and other instances were related by Walter Runciman, M. P., at a trade union luncheon recently. The register at the Board of Trade, he said, shows 60,000 women volunteers for war work.

PREPARING FOR ALFALFA.

A mellow, well-compacted soil makes a good seedbed for alfalfa. The capillary attraction of the subsoil and the top soil must be well restored; the land must be firm with only a little loose dirt on top, not much more than is needed to cover the seed. This condition can be obtained by early plowing and a great deal of work with the disk and harrow. If the soil is adapted to alfalfa and is properly prepared, you can be as certain of getting a stand of alfalfa as any other crop.

NEAR DEATH BY SMOTHERING

But Husband, With Aid of Cardui, Effects Her Deliverance.

Draper, N. C.—Mrs. Helen Dalton, of this place, says: "I suffered for years, with pains in my left side, and would often almost smother to death."

Medicines patched me up for awhile but then I would get worse again. Finally, my husband decided he wanted me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, so he bought me a bottle and I began using it. It did me more good than all the medicines I had taken.

I have induced many of my friends to try Cardui, and they all say they have been benefited by its use. There never has been, and never will be, a medicine to compare with Cardui. I believe it is a good medicine for all womanly troubles."

For over 50 years, Cardui has been relieving woman's sufferings and building weak women up to health and strength. If you are a woman, give it a fair trial. It should surely help you, as it has a million others.

Washington.—Arrival of the press translation of the German note confirmed impressions which have been current in official quarters for several days that Germany would refuse to give the assurances asked for by the United States in her last note that the Margaret Smith

The press copy arrived too late to be read by many officials and those who Bernard Coughlin saw it said they could not comment until the official text from Ambassador Gerard had arrived. This probably will reach here late Sunday and President Wilson, it is understood, will start back for Washington to consider Elizabeth Taylor the communication with his cabinet as soon as word is sent him that it has reached here.

The directors of the Citizens Bank of Nepton, Fleming county, closed its doors Thursday and placed its affairs in the hands of State Banking Commissioner Thomas J. Smith, for liquidation. This action was taken after a committee of directors had conferred with Commissioner Smith and they notified Deputy Commissioner Rankin R.

Franklin Slye

Reville. T. H. Tolbert, cashier of the Ewing Deposit Bank, was made special Mrs. Blanche Prather deputy in charge. The bank had a capital of $15,000 and deposits amounting to about $20,000. The field was found to be too limited to support a bank, it is stated.

FAMOUS FLAGS ARE TO BE RESTORED TO THE KENTUCKY HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Judge John Roper
Frankfort, Ky.—Mrs. Jennie C. Morton, Registrar of the Kentucky Historical Society, has been notified by R. C. Ballard Thurston, of Louisville, that the three famous flags owned by the society will be restored by the Sons of the American Revolution.

The Confederate banner recaptured at Saltville, W. Va., by Judge Montford, then a soldier in the command of General John C. Breckenridge in 1864, is one of them.

The framed guidon, borne by the famous "Forlorn Hope," Colonel Richard M. Johnson's company, in the battle of the Thames, is another. The flag of the United States, borne by Colonel Hardin, Clay and McKee in the battle of Buena Vista, is the third flag that will be restored.
